Participant Eligibility Guidelines

Mission Statement: Eagle Mount Bozeman is committed to providing quality adaptive recreation and sport opportunities for people with disabilities and young people with cancer, and to provide support for families of those participants, so that ‘they shall mount up with wings as eagles.’

Participant Eligibility & Essential Eligibility Criteria: Eagle Mount Bozeman’s Participant Eligibility Guidelines are used to confirm an individual is eligible for Eagle Mount services and programming. Eagle Mount Bozeman’s Essential Eligibility Criteria are used to identify what programs a participant may engage in.

Qualifying Primary Disability and/or Diagnosis: Following are the basic guidelines we use to establish eligibility for our services. Please note that Eagle Mount’s working definition of a disability is not exactly the same as that defined by the US Government and covered by IDEA. Qualifying disabilities and/or specific diagnoses must be confirmed by a medical expert on the Eagle Mount Physician Approval Form.

- Physical disability such that special accommodations, teaching approach, or adaptive equipment is required for individuals to participate in recreational activities. Examples may include but are not limited to: limited independent mobility/paralysis, amputees, non-ambulatory participants, limited or no use of extremities, epilepsy, visual impairment, and age-related disability.
- Developmental/Intellectual such that special accommodations, teaching approach, or adaptive equipment is required for individuals to participate in recreational activities. Examples may include but are not limited to: autism, Down syndrome, ADHD, non-specific developmental delays, and age-related disability.
- Sensory processing disorders such that special accommodations, teaching approach, or adaptive equipment is required for individuals to participate in recreational activities.
- Cancer diagnosis in children and young adults. Individuals with a cancer diagnosis are eligible for Eagle Mount’s Big Sky Kids programming. Individuals who have or have had cancer may participate in other Eagle Mount programs if their illness has resulted in a qualifying disability.

Non-Qualifying Disabilities and/or Diagnoses:

- Emotional disabilities, temporary disability, and mental illness. Individuals who meet Eagle Mount’s qualifying primary disability and/or diagnosis guidelines who also experience emotional disability or temporary disability remain qualified for Eagle Mount services.

Participant Behavioral Expectations & Policies

Eagle Mount Bozeman strives to provide a safe, fun, recreation experience for every participant, regardless of age or type of disability. Not every participant will enjoy every program; participants and families are encouraged to try a range of activities, with an eye to personal enjoyment as well as personal benefit. If an individual's behavior results in a safety concern for the individual, staff, or other participants, a parent or other legally responsible adult may be required to act as a volunteer and/or companion<sup>1</sup>Error! Bookmark not defined. for that participant.

Occasionally, it is necessary to remove a participant from a class, from a program, or from Eagle Mount for behavioral reasons. Eagle Mount staff are trained to manage behavioral issues, and to determine when behaviors may be unsafe. Staff have the authority to make the decision to remove a participant and your participation in Eagle Mount programs signals your agreement to abide by their decision.

1. Types of behavior that may cause removal from a program
  - a. Dangerous or violent behavior that poses a threat to the participant's own safety, or to the safety of other participants, volunteers, or staff (e.g., biting, hitting, throwing, running away).
  - b. Disruptive behavior that may endanger others (e.g., spooking horses).
  - c. Destructive behavior that may threaten people or property. (e.g., breaking equipment).
  - d. Any behavior not consistent with Eagle Mount's values of health, inclusion, and independence (e.g., abusive language, disrespect to others).

2. Procedure for removal
  - a. Inappropriate behaviors will result in the immediate removal of a participant from his or her current class or session.
  - b. Eagle Mount staff and/or volunteers will attempt to work with the participant to try to determine whether the cause of the behavior can be removed or ameliorated, so that the participant can return to the program.
  - c. If this is not possible, the program director will discuss the situation with the participant and/or family, with an eye to finding a resolution.
  - d. If no resolution can be found, and the behavior persists, the participant may be removed from the program, either temporarily or permanently. In some cases, it may be possible to switch to a different program.

3. Procedure for redressing a decision for removal
  - a. If a participant, caregiver, or family feels that the participant has been removed from a program unjustly, they may request a review of the situation.
  - b. If a review is requested, Eagle Mount will convene a board made up of directors of other programs to review the situation and make a recommendation.
  - c. If the recommendation made by the group is still not felt to be acceptable, the Executive Director will make a thorough review of the situation. The decision of the Executive Director is final.
